

What are compliant products?

The medical cannabis law creates a set of standards for products that may be beneficial for medical use. Licensed producers and processors may follow voluntary testing standards set forth by the Department of Health in order to create higher quality products. If they do so, the product may be identified as compliant.

The department standards for compliance mean:

- Consumers have the choice between compliant or regular products.
- Compliant product has gone through mandatory testing for:
 - Prohibited pesticides
 - Heavy metals
 - Mycotoxins
- Ratios for high CBD/low THC products are transparent and sales tax-free for any adult, not just patients.

What does this logo mean?

The logo means that the product has been tested for prohibited pesticides, mycotoxins and heavy metals, and therefore may be beneficial for medical use. The logo references chapter 246-70, which outlines the standards for cannabis products to qualify as a compliant product.

Where are compliant products?

General use and high-CBD compliant products may be sold at any licensed cannabis store. High-THC compliant products may be sold only at licensed and medically endorsed cannabis stores.

Medical Cannabis laws and rules

The Washington State Liquor and Cannabis Board (WSLCB) has regulatory authority over licensing and regulating all cannabis producers, processors, retail stores and patient cooperatives.

The Washington State Department of Health has regulatory authority over the medical cannabis database system and credentialing of medical cannabis consultants who work in medically endorsed cannabis stores.

A Patient's Guide to... Compliant Cannabis Products

Products That May be Beneficial for Medical Use

DOH 608-011 November 2023

Compliant Cannabis Products

Compliant products fall into one of three categories. To display the logo on product packaging, they must meet all requirements in their classification as well as requirements in the WSLCB rules.

Want medically compliant products? Ask for them!

Stores choose the inventory they want to sell. Licensed producers and processors are developing new medically compliant products. If your favorite cannabis store does not carry compliant products, let them know which products you would like to have available for purchase!
