Expanding English based examination may provide more options for Washington State acupuncture and Eastern medicine practitioner licensing applicants who have completed the required National Certification Commission of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine (NCCAOM) examinations in languages other than English. English based examinations are necessary as acupuncture and Eastern medicine practitioners are required to demonstrate sufficient fluency in reading, speaking, and understanding English. The department in consultation with the committee may consider amendments to other relevant application and examination requirement rule sections in chapter 246-803 WAC.
