

What are compliant products?

The medical marijuana law allows for products that may be beneficial for medical use. These products must pass stringent testing set by the Washington State Department of Health.

The department established rules to:

- Create voluntary standards for higher quality products, including mandatory testing for:
 - Prohibited pesticides
 - Heavy metals
 - Mycotoxins
- Allow consumers the choice of compliant or regular products.
- Create ratios for high CBD/low THC products that are sales tax-free for any adult.

Compliant product testing

Licensed producers and processors must follow the rules and guidelines set forth by the Washington State Department of Health in order to create compliant products and use the department's compliant logos.

There is no application or department approval process. However, the producers and processors must follow the WSLCB's traceability system process and ensure all required testing is done.

Medical marijuana laws and rules

The Cannabis Patient Protection Act was signed into law April 2015 and went into full effect on July 1, 2016.

This law aligns licensing and regulation of all marijuana producers, processors, retail stores and patient cooperatives under the oversight of the Washington State Liquor and Cannabis Board (WSLC).

The Washington State Department of Health manages the medical marijuana database system and credentialing of medical marijuana consultants who work in medically endorsed marijuana stores.
